however, the adverse results could include:
	25X1
<ul> <li>damage to the current DOJ and Senate in- vestigations by premature disclosure of individuals involved;</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>creation of friction between the Agency and the committees involved; and,</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>additional poor press on the Agency, and in particular its handling or possible in- tentional mishandling of information of this nature.</li> </ul>
2. The notes in question were made from Agency documents, classified SECRET and CONFIDENTIAL, which had been santitized to prevent identification of sources and protect Agency equities in ongoing operations. Previous leaks to the press of information related to this investigation and identification of other individuals involved has identified CIA as being in possession of material of this general nature, though not specifically delineating the material. Further, disclosure of this material might create problems in Agency's dealing the Congressional Committees and the Department of Justice.
